

A NEW CITIZEN OF MELBOURNE WHO LIVES AT A PIECE OF SEA IN THE SKY

People are accustomed to see "energy" as a free gift of the nature, as a tool or material; it is the source of interests exchange, conflict and even war. But the more obvious fact is: The foundation of millions of years of earth's life and the origin and evolution of thousands of creatures lies in the continuous input of energy (the sun). ENERGY has given birth to life, and it is the stable blood transfusion of the earth. We should always feel awed and grateful to this.

Therefore, this project aims to visualize this undisclosed, constant but dynamic, spectacular transfusion process. People will re-understand the sea breeze and sunshine and recognize their positive energy. Imagine a whale living in a piece of sea, using sunlight and wind as food. Normally, the whale is hidden under the surface of water. When the sea breeze and sunlight pass by, it leave a tangle of ripple. People simultaneously feel like to look up to the sky from under the water surface, observing the changes, the light and shadow created by the ripples. When the sun and wind accumulate enough energy for them, the whales will emerge from the sea like the animals that were fed in the marine pavilion. In this process you will see how the sun and the wind change the form of the water surface into the exciting moment of bringing up a living creature.

This whale, beckoned by the sunlight and sea breeze, like the real whale in the bay, will even have her own name and birthday and phonation. It will be a lovely and lively new member of Melbourne, and a special scenery of SK kilda.
