environmental impact

The intervention is designed to improve the context in which it is based. Abrevientos intends to be part of the icons and heritage buildings of the St Kilda Triangle and Port Phillip, offering something unique and distinctive for all who visit. The efforts to integrate to the place, to be the door of the place, are directed to a sustainable development that attracts people.

This is exactly the intention of Abreviento to unite people and inspire them to develop a more sustainable lifestyle. The structure would generate energy from a renewable source and then feed this energy to the grid. Clean energy will be consumed by immediate context.
