

The Cloud At Night. A friction of the energy produced and stored during the day is used to create a unique sense of place.