

Spining Generator Towers

The spiral towers are formed by spinning skins facing around the main towers which can be spin or be fixed and faced to south, covered with a photovoltaic skin made of solar panels. The spinning panels are working as a generator during days when sun is over-head and at night they can be moved kineticly through their down sides and disappear or work as big monitors for the visitors or the people inside or outside.

