

The biomimicry concept

Imitating the Namibian beetle (the trunk of the palm tree is covered with a microstructure that captures the moisture in the air to convey it to the lakes, to minimize water wastag and create a micro climate that encourages the development of the phone and flora to simulate an oasis in the desert.

To lakes (to supply them with water)