

The opposite side of the solar panels are painted colorfully to create a playful scene when viewed from the ground.

The effect to the land is minimal. The design intervenes the ground level only through the parabolic columns. But still people can engage into the landscape.

