At night, the greenhouses became a luminous sculpture that marked and embellished, together with the fires scattered among the lodgings, the surrounding landscape. Moreover, this is what reigns now in these places.

In compliance with the guidelines of the announcement, the greenhouses were built within the areas (Primary site boundary) which provided for the construction of structures with deep foundations. The dealings, which were not equipped with similar foundations, could be distributed as desired in low-impact areas (Low-impact site boundary).

... But: I fell asleep? Then I was just dreaming? ... Maybe, but isn't it wonderful to dream?
