

FLY RANCH WEATHER STATIONS

The scale of the Fly Ranch site allows for an intervention that explores the importance of microclimates for sustainable design.

Three instances of the design populate the site, each one metering the climate in it's specific place through the use of lightweight membranes.

The membranes/vessels change shape through the location's specific climate in an attempt to bring these phenomena to the forefront of future creators thoughts when development occurs.

