

The Hatchery

Fly Ranch's Mobile Workhorse

The Hatchery is a mobile work machine that provides a framework for a unique self-build system of construction to enable the realization of countless other projects around Fly Ranch. While the proposal is primarily a broad system of construction to address the needs for Shelter, the vehicle itself functions as the primary tool that facilitates this system of construction. Taking the form of a slow moving animal roaming through the fields of Fly Ranch, its dyed thatch skin – inspired by the indigenous technology of early Paiute shelters – attempts to merge with the landscape in celebration of the stunning natural beauty of Fly Ranch. Through innovation of ancient materials and technologies, this proposal is the perfect fit for the Fly Ranch project to pioneer new forms of architecture that will set an example for a sustainable future, offering new ways of working and living in harmony with the land and each other.
