

Collections of these can be arranged to create a place of solace and provide a stronger signal for wayfinding.

At the end of its service life, the toilet is decommissioned, the hole filled, and the embedded seeds, "pootrients," plant matter and absorbant material sprout new life on the site.

The interior is designed to provide a respite from the activity and grand landscape around it.

