The pavilion is a space created by combining multiple stand-alone structures. This provides shade and seating under it. It also acts as a gathering space for people and activities.

The form of this structure being derived from a plant native to the site is a way for it to blend into the surroundings and represent the diversity of the land.