

AGRICULTURAL BENEFIT SYSTEM

High-efficiency crops that can be grown in vertical farming and have strong tolerance were selected for subsequent planting activities. Using these crops for basic planting, in addition to aesthetics, is estimated to increase yields by 48% in the same area compared to conventional flat planting. It is estimated that the selected crops under the same area only need to be cultivated with 30% of the planting area.

