

Installation Location

The design produces minimum disruption to the existing ecosystem by sharing natural light with elements of the natural ecosystem throughout hence rarely impeding their growth. The structure has a minimal contact with ground and hence allows easy ground water percolation.

Turbines here will not be simple renewable elements. Their size and height/ cluster formation will change. They will become landmarks and direct movement towards specific zones within the site area